and

THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

St. Louis, Missouri

DEDICATION

Mr. George B. Storey

With far-reaching vision which encompassed not only the future of the Bible Presbyterian Church but also the education and training of his own grandchildren, he spoke for the formation of Covenant College on the floor of the 18th General Synod of the Bible Presbyterian Church meeting in St. Louis. He was appointed a member of the original committee delegated to establish the school, and became the first Chairman of the Board of Trustees when Covenant College was organized and incorporated. He has served faithfully and capably.

To this successful Christian business man, long-time Presbyterian elder, honored father of the Church, loved and beloved — we affectionately dedicate this 1958 Tartan.

First row: Noe, Belz, Rayburn, Storey, Edwards, Juliusson, Shepperson. Second row: Dillard, Mare, Williams, Thurman, Krauss, Malkus, Gebb, MacNair.

FOREWORD

. . . We need boldness to go forward — not merely to go on from day to day — but the boldness to do our task with contagious spirit and enthusiasm, so that the very glory of Christ may shine forth from this campus to the uttermost parts of the earth.

J. Oliver Buswell, Jr.

. . . For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind.

SEMINARY STUDENT COUNCIL

The Graduate School of Theology made several contributions to campus life as the seminary students' activities ranged from student government to social functions. The seminary council, made up of elected representatives, aided in drawing up a constitution for the governing council over the entire Covenant student body. Entertainment at the spring banquet was provided by the seminary quartet, which also presented the Gospel in song in the chapel hour. The meetings of the seminary discussion club were spiritually and intellectually stimulating to students and faculty alike.

Seminary students were active also in the surrounding communities. Church work was carried on in Newburn, Illinois, and the Hazelwood Church, in St. Louis County, was begun largely through the efforts of Covenant students. The seminary participated in services at all the local Bible Presbyterian Churches and at other churches in the area.

Professors R. L. Harris, W. A. Sanderson, and R. A. Killen were advisers to the three classes.

COLLEGE STUDENT COUNCIL

Several innovations were put into effect this year by the College's student council. The governing body encouraged organization of a group of cheerleaders for the basketball games, instituted singspirations for alternate Sunday nights, and also established a bulletin board to keep students informed of actions taken. The decision was made to take an offering at Monday chapel services to provide students a chance to assist in the financial support of the school.

The council looked to the future as it sent letters to prospective students and designed an upperclass advisory system for incoming freshmen. Having sent two delegates to a conference of the Association of Evangelical Students, the council directed the drawing up of a constitution for the executive council of the college and seminary. Officers included Ray Wright, president; Delores Sneller, vice-president; Miriam Malkus, secretary; and Bill McColley, treasurer.

ACTIVITIES

FOREIGN MISSIONS FELLOWSHIP

Cannon, Belz, Alexander

One of the most active organizations on campus was the Foreign Missions Fellowship. Besides the regular monthly meetings, prayer groups were established, an inspirational-reading shelf was set apart in the library, and stamps were collected to help support World Presbyterian Missions.

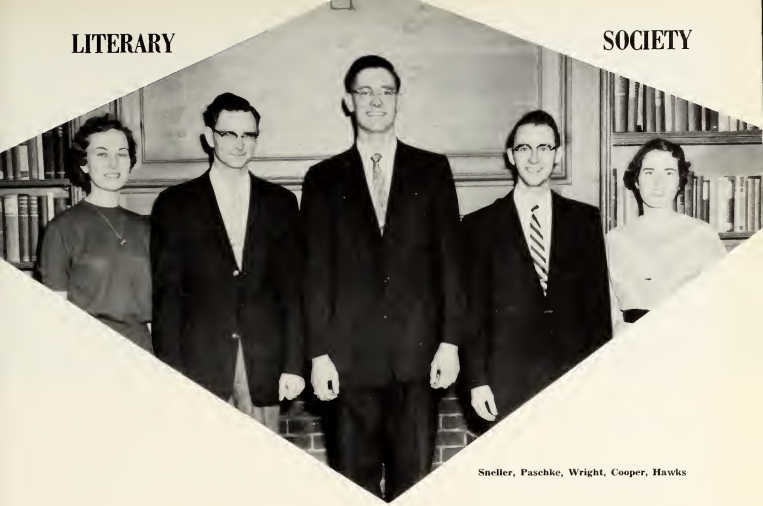
President Dan Cannon, vice-president David Alexander, and secretary Julie Belz announced F.M.F.'s sponsoring of a special student project to raise five-hundred dollars for the aid of foreign missions with the added purposes of enlarging student vision and teaching reliance upon the Lord.

DISCIPLINE COMMITTEE

The Discipline Committee, under the leadership of Chairman Neal Cooper, proved to be an important and effective branch of Covenant's student government. Working in co-operation with the Dean of Students, Dr. Peter Stam, Jr., the committee handled any major discipline problems that came up during the school year, giving due consideration to each case, counseling the individuals involved, and assigning penalties when necessary. Other members of the committee were Raymond Wright, Julie Belz, Norma Libby, and Bill McColley.

Wright, Belz, Cooper, Libby, McColley

LITERARY SOCIETY



Sneller, Paschke, Wright, Cooper, Hawks

The Literary Society, a cultural organization purposing to acquaint students with good literature, music, different forms of speech, and parliamentary procedure, offered two outstanding programs this year. Highlights of the first meeting included a review of Herman Melville's Moby Dick and a clever extemporaneous speech in keeping with the theme "Ships". The second program, built around the theme "Highways and Byways" featured a formal debate concerning billboards on federal highways, and a parliamentary drill.

Society officers were Raymond Wright, president, Priscilla Hawks, secretary, Delores Sneller, program chairman, Richard Paschke, critic, and Neal Cooper, sergeant at arms. Dr. Rayburn was faculty adviser for the group.

SEMINARY DISCUSSION CLUB

Covenant Seminary students instituted a discussion club this year for the purpose of considering practical applications of their theological studies. Two papers on the work of the Holy Spirit, one on Dispensationalism, and one on the "New Evangelicalism" were heard and discussed in the four monthly meetings held in the spring semester.

Professor Wallis was faculty adviser to the student committee comprised of senior Robert Milliken and juniors Phillip Olin and William Barker with senior Richard Bolyard as an alternate.

COLLEGE CHOIR

The Covenant College choir built up a solid repertoire of religious anthems and songs during the fall and then exercised its abilities in appearances at local churches through the winter and in a spring tour that included stops at Nashville, Tennessee and Bowling Green, Kentucky. Jim Conrad, Donna Johnson, and Priscilla Hawks were officers of the group, which is directed by Miss Eula McCain.

SEMINARY QUARTET

The seminary quartet, composed of Tom Sidebotham, Will Barker, Ray Dameron, and Al Lutz, served in local congregations as well as at school aiding in evangelistic meetings, chapel services, and social events.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS

Covenant college is represented in print by two student publications: The Bagpipe, a bi-monthly newspaper containing both student and faculty news and The Tartan, a year book compiled by the senior class of the college giving an illustrated summary of the past year's events.

The Bagpipe staff is made up of members of the advanced writing course under the sponsorship of Dr. Downey with Mr. Schmidt as layout director. Dr. Smick, senior class adviser is faculty sponsor for The Tartan.

PRACTICAL CHRISTIAN WORK

Students in the college and seminary have found that engaging in practical Christian work is a helpful supplement to their studies, in preparation for future service for the Lord. Churches in the St. Louis area have offered the students splendid opportunities for Christian service. Pictured on this page are the local Bible Presbyterian churches. In addition to these there are many other churches, missions, Bible classes, and young people's clubs which have welcomed Covenant students and given them a chance to make use of their Christian training.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Social life at Covenant, including a variety of picnics, parties, receptions, and informal socials, was highlighted by the two annual banquets, one before the Christmas recess and the other in March.

Autumn colors surrounded the newly gathered student body at a get-acquainted picnic in the country following the evening of the faculty reception at the beginning of the year. A week of freshman initiation assured a thorough introduction of the new students to the campus.

"Winter Wonderland" was the theme of the Christmas banquet, which featured impromptu speeches and the singing of carols. By the end of January snow had really come, and the cancellation of a choir engagement resulted in a snug social before the fire-place in the log-house men's dormitory.

Climaxing the social events of the year was the annual Tales of the Covenanters banquet, based this year on Stevenson's Treasure Island. The seminary quartet entertained with songs and parodies of school life. Plans for all social affairs were made by a committee comprised of Julie Belz, Jim Conrad, and Gil Stemmerman and headed by Dorothy Gray.

SPORTS

Covenant's first organized athletic team furnished students plenty of excitement through the winter. The basketball squad collected two victories out of a schedule that included Bible Baptist and Evangel colleges of Springfield, Missouri, Greenville College from Illinois, Mid-West Bible Institute, Truth for Youth, and Logan College of St. Louis. High scorers were seminarians Bob Woodson and Captain Dan Cannon. A league of Christian schools is planned for next season.

Sports activities on the campus revolved from the open-air volleyball court and basketball stand in good weather to the always active ping-pong table indoors and provided hard-working students with a lot of exercise.
